Mississippi Editor Is Killed by Mayor---Latter Suicides

65-Year-Old Man Proves He Is Real News Publisher

Mortally Wounded, Gives Reporter Instructions To Write Story

RESULT OF OLD FEUD

Mayor Drives to Undertaker Establishment and Suicides

YAZOO, Miss., April 2.—(AP)—Frank Birdsall, editor and member of the state tax commission, died today as a result of bullet wounds he received at the hands of mayor J. T. Strickland, who yesterday after the shooting Birdsall, killed his own self by firing a shot into his body.

The 65-year-old publisher proved a real newspaper man to the bone. Wounded and in a very serious condition, he stayed the hand of surgeons until he gave final instructions to his reporter to write a full detail of the occount of the Main street shooting where he fell mortally wounded, and which he requested it be sent to the Associated Press.

His assailant, mayor J. O. Strickland, ended his own life after shooting the editor. He walked calmly to his automobile and drove to his son's undertaking establishment, and fired a last shot into his own body.

The shooting grew out of an old feud between the two. In a campaign for mayor, Birdsall supported Dr. R. E. Hawkins and pointed references to an old charge against Strickland, who at one time was accused of calf stealing. The trial came up later, and Strickland was acquitted of the charge.

Carleson Puts in a New Fountain

Hope Confectionery Completes Remodeling of Store

Remodeling of the Hope Confectionery store on South Main street has been completed by the proprietor, A. L. (Louie) Carleson, with the installation yesterday of a new and beautiful soda fountain.

Mr. Carleson some time ago refurnished his store with new fixtures and a tile floor, and the completion of the new fountain, a 17-foot bank of Carrara marble, makes a striking interior.

The fountain was installed by J. V. Lynch of the Liquid Carbonic corporation, St. Louis. It is in black and white, with 11 syrup syphons and 8 ice cream containers, all accessories being silver-plated.

Hope Confectionery makes a specialty of curb service during the summer, and the new large fountain was installed to take care of growing needs.

He's A Pie-Eating Foot-Racing Cop, If Anybody Asks You!

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—Until today, policeman July orrela's only claim to fame was being named a month. He could eat while riding a motorcycle and he weighs 205 pounds, but those were minor matters.

Now he holds the crown as the champion eat-and-run policeman of almost anywhere. Here's how he won it.

Ten times he galloped from Dempster street to the police station, some four miles in all, in 22 minutes flat by a fellow officer's watch. He ate an apple pie at the start, a peach pie at the half way mark and an apple pie at the finish.

He won a $2 bet four brother policemen had posted.

Local Merchants Meet Tomorrow

Monthly Banquet 7:30 P. M. Thursday at Barlow

The Hope Retail Merchants association which now includes more than 80 firms and professional men, will hold its regular monthly banquet meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night in Hotel Barlow.

Reservations should be made at once with J. C. Carlton, secretary, at the association's office in the First National Bank building, phone 711. Attention of the membership is called to the banquet meeting in the April 1st bulletin of the association, which has just reached subscribers.

A brief program will be offered at the banquet meeting, but the primary purpose is to discuss association matters, and new policies. The round table discussion will follow the banquet.

New members reported in this week's association bulletin are:

Hempstead County Abstract company, Moses & Monroe, and G. P. Casey.

Okay Mail Route Draws 25 Bidders;

Contract To Be Awarded in Washington This Spring

One hundred and fifty inquiries and twenty-five actual bids were received by Hope postoffice on the proposed contract for a star mail route from this city to the newly established postoffice at Okay, bids closing last night.

Although the Hope postoffice was swamped with inquiries, the actual number will probably run larger than the above, according to Postmaster J. A. Davis, for the local office exhausted three supplies of blank forms for bidders, and finally had to refer applicants to the Second Assistant Postmaster, at Washington, D. C.

The Okay contract will be let sometime in the next 60 or 90 days. Service on the new star route is scheduled to begin July 1, and the contract must be awarded a full month before that date.

It is possible that service may be started earlier, however, the general order from Washington stating that service may begin "on that date or as soon as satisfactory arrangements have been made for the establishing of a new postoffice at Okay."

The new service will call for one round trip daily between this city and the Arkansas Portland Cement company's new community, just across the Howard county line. The Star route carrier will call for mail in Hope early in the morning, delivering it to Okay a little over an hour later. He will spend the day in Okay, bringing return mail to this city before dark.

Burns Fatal to Camden Child

Was Severely Scalded When Water Boiler Is Upset

CAMDEN, April 2.—Mable Jean Maxey, four, daughter of Mr. and mrs. F. H. Maxey, died at 1 a. m. Tuesday as a result of burns received when a pot of scalding water turned over on her.

According to reports Mable was playing around a water boiler in a neighbor's yard and in some manner the boiler was upset and the child severely scalded.

Mystery Killing Is Attributed To Conspiracy Plot

Friend Identifies Body as That of William Robert Tearman

A. J. BASS IS HELD

Scars on Lips and Hands Offer Conclusive Identification

BENTONVILLE, April 2.—(AP)—Shoraly after identifying the body of a man found along the roadside near here as that of William Robert Pearman, Columbia, Mo., automobile mechanic, Miss Pearl Howell, pretty Columbia waitress told sheriff Edgar Fields that the story was a carefully laid plot to collect $200,000 insurance in which Pearman was the conspirator. The girl said that Pearman and Dr. A. J. Bass, Columbia, Mo., dentist, took out the insurance policy after Pearman had presented himself as William Folta, missing seventeen years frim his family. Pearman was said by the girl to resemble Folta, making the description complete.

BENTONVILLE, April 2.—(AP)—The body of a man who was mysteriously slain near Gravette, Ark., has been attributed by officers as a part of a huge insurance conspiracy plot. The body was identified today by a friend as that of William Robert Tearman, Columbia, Mo., automobile mechanic, mission from his home since last March 21, when he left for Kansas City.

Tearman said he was going to Kansas City to transact business concerning a land deal, and left with Dr. A. J. Bass, Columbia, Mo., retired dentist and land dealer, who is now in custody here on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying.

The body was discovered on the roadside near Gravette last Saturday bearing papers with the name of William Folta on them. Bass identified the body as that of Folta. Mrs. Tearman is on her way here today from Columbia, Mo., to identify the body.

Scars on the hands and lips of the body offered conclusive evidence of Tearman's identification by his friend.

Meanwhile A. J. Bass, of Columbia, Mo., retired dentist and land dealer, insists that the body held in the morgue at Gravette, Ark., is that of William Folta, land dealer and which he holds a $200,000 life insurance policy, remained in the county jail on a first degree murder charge.

Bass was arrested yesterday immediately after leaving the grand jury room after being questioned concerning a land deal with William Folta, in which the former signed four $50,000 insurance policies.

Threat Believed "April Fool" Joke

Extortion Notes Are Sent Texarkana High School Co-Ed.

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 2.—(AP)—Federal and state officers expressed belief that three extortion notes sent to a 16-year-old high school co-ed were pranks of school acquaintances in the nature of an early "April fool" joke.

The notes, threatening Jeroline Powers with death unless $500 was placed at a designated spot near here, were delivered at the Powers home last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. One threatened the girl with death unless she left the city, while the last one warned her against informing her family or police.

Authorities expressed doubt that the senders could have been serious in expecting her not to tell her family and still deliver $500.

Handwriting experts will be consulted in an effort to learn whether the writing was that of a child ir an adult.

Capt. Frank Hawks Lands At Wichita

WICHITA, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, en route from San Diego, Cal., to New York in a glider towed by an airplane, landed at Staley field here at 9 o'clock this morning after a flight from Sweetwater, Texas.

He soared over the field for about twenty-five minutes after cutting loose from the airplane. He plans to spend the night in Tulsa, Okla.

Traveling Men to Be Given Banquet

'Peddlers Jubilee' to Take Place of Loyalty Event In April

A Peddlers Jubilee honoring the 90 or more traveling men who make their home in this city while covering the western counties for their respective firms, will be held some time this month, it was decided by the executive board of Hope Chamber of Commerce at luncheon today in Hotel Barlow.

The motion was made by Terrell Cornelius, and the board authorized the trade extension committee to make plans for the jubilee. Members of this committee are: Mr. Cornelius, George W. Robison and John P. Cox.

A fellowship meeting of this kind, in behalf of the commercial travelers who live here yet are not in close contact with the civic life of Hope, has been agitated for some time by the Rev. W. A. Bowen, First Baptist pastor who observed a similar program carried out successfully at his former home, Lubbock, Texas. The Rev. Mr. Bowen brought the matter to the attention of Mr. Cornelius, and also The Star; and it came before the Chamber of Commerce today.

The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, and Business and Professional Women's club, will be asked to participate jointly with the Chamber of Commerce in arranging this welcome for the traveling men. The banquet meeting, which will be held probably on a Friday in order to allow all travelers time to get in for their usual week end at home, will take the place of the customary Loyalty Banquet, sponsored by W. Y. Foster, Sr. It will carry out the Loyalty theme, making every local traveling man a booster for Hope.

Thurman Rhodes told the board meeting today that he would endeavor to get a list of all local traveling men representing automotive supply houses; and other trade lines are asked to gather a list of their traveling representatives who are stationed here.

New Cotton Parachute Will Stand Heavy Pull

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 2.—(AP)—A new parachute made entirely of cotton, has been tried successfully in Sweden.

It is strong enough to withstand a pull of 220 pounds at a descending speed of 248 miles an hour. The device is equipped with both manual and automatic opening devices, each separated from the other.

The parachute has created great interest in London, where it is on exhibition, and is being tested by German aviation authorities.

It is called the "Robur" and its inventor is S. Kuhlemann, a Stockholm engineer.

Still Captured In Bodcaw Area

Sixty Gallon Affair Seized, Alleged Operator is Arrested

Never tasting whisky in his life, but only in the game to make money out of it, Earl Whitten, aged 26, was arrested late yesterday afternoon in connection with a still he is alleged to have operated.

Whitten lives one mile south of Bodcaw where a 60-gallon still was seized by officers Jack Thompson and Jim Bearden, of Hempstead county, C. B. Goodwin, of Baker township, Nevada county, in a raid late yesterday.

Seventy gallons of "eat," eight barrells of mash, one sack of shorts, and 550 pounds of sugar were confiscated and thrown in a well nearby.

Whitten was taken to Texarkana, where he appeared before United States Commissioner Ducomb, who bound him over to the grand jury under a $1,500 bond.

Spring Hill to Present Class Play

"Go Slow Mary" Is Title; Austin Will Deliver Address

The eighth grade graduating class of Spring Hill school, seven miles southwest of this city, will present their annual school play Thursday night, April 3, at Spring Hill school house, under the direction of Mrs. T. M. Honea.

The play selected is entitled "Go Slow Mary," which will be presented by the eight grade students, and other members of the school who will take part. Mr. E. E. Austin, county superintendent, will be present, and deliver an address especially to the members of the graduating class.

Those who will take part are: Boyd Painter, Bobbie Foster, Mattie Starks, M. D. Whatley, Harold Collins, Herbert Greenshaw, Mable Beard, Ruby Reed, Benson Foster, William Foster and Melvin Johnson.

Party Day Draws Record Crowd to Cooking School

New Recipes for Thursday, Next to Last Day

CLOSES ON FRIDAY

Second Annual School Nearing Final Session at Saenger

Thursday's Program

Tomorrow—next to the last day of The Star's Free Cooking School at the Publix-Saenger—Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig will discuss the following receipes:

Rost shoulder of lamb or mutton; turkey dressing, potatoes croquette, green beans, carrots and celery, fried cauliflower, and frozen relish.

Party day at The Star's Free Cooking School in the Publix-Saenger theatre drew the largest crowd of the week to the big auditorium this afternoon.

Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig's program, published in full in another part of today's Star, was watched intently by at least 100 more women than attended Tuesday's session of the Cooking School.

Out-of-town attendance has grown with each succeeding day's session, and many guests have been registered from Howard and Nevada counties. Women's demonstration clubs are attending in groups, as this is the largest culinary school and exhibit fair of any description to be held in Southwest Arkansas each year.

More than 30 local and national business houses are represented in the kitchen appliances and food articles which are on display in the lobby, on the mezzanine floor, and on the stage.

Only two more days of the School remain, Mrs. Ihrig closing her course with the final lecture-demonstration starting at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

State Architect in Local Office

D. F. Waver Here for Work on School Projects

D. F. Weaver, former Hope architect who is now assistant director of buildings and grounds for the State Department of Education, arrived in Hope yesterday from Little Rock, having been loaned here temporarily by the state to complete certain school architectual jobs in this county.

Mr. Weaver has taken offices in the Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. building during his star here, and is available for consultations with school officials.

Several new building projects are pending as the result of school distirct consolidations in this county, and most of these will probably be realized during Mr. Weaver's visit here. A model building was erected last year at Spring Hill, and similar structures are planned elsewhere in the county this year.

Petition Case To Supreme Court

Attorney Says Highest Court Action Would Save Year's Time

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)— To expediate action on the conviction of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Enterior, on a charge of bribery of heny in making oil leases, the governaccepting $100,000 from Edward L. Doment today petitioned the case to the heny in making oil leases, the governSupreme court to take jurisdiction without awaiting action of the District of Columbia court of appeals, where Fall has an appeal pending.

Should the Supreme court pass on the case without awaiting action from the District of Columbia attorneys expected that about one year's time would be saved in getting action by the highest court.

Seems Like it is Just An Old Family Custom

ARKADELPHIA, April 2.—(AP)—Taking the fifteenth decennial census is just another census to the Bridges family.

When U. R. Bridges, of Hollywood, about 12 miles west of here, started out Wednesday morning to take the census of Greenville and Long Creek tonships of Clark county, it was the fifth time that a member of the Bridges family had taken a federal census.

U. R. Bridges was census enumerator in 1920 as well as 930. Before 1920, in 1890, 1900 and 1910 his father W. D. Bridges, enumerated the two townships for the government.

Officer Killed Roadhouse Party

One in Serious Condition After Shooting Affair

LEPANTO, Ark., April 2.—(AP)—A man slapped his wife to the bare floor as an echo to Travis Howell, aged 52, deputy sheriff, who today is dead and O. K. Warnick, aged 23, is in a serious condition.

The two men attended a party at a roadhouse near here last night. Mrs. Warnick raised her husband's dander by dancing with another man. He walked over and slapped her to the floor.

"Take her home if you have to beat her," spectators said Howell told Warnick. The later left the road house, but returned a few minutes later armed with a shot gun. He came into the dance hall and after a sneering remark to Howell "you think you are tough, yeh," shot the deputy sheriff through the deputy sheriff through the abdomen. While the officer lay mortally wounded on the floor he pulled his pistol and fired, wounding Warnick.

The former was taken to Harrisburg for treatment of his wounds, but later died.

Yancey Arrives at Bermuda Today

Was Forced Down on Calm Sea Because Darkness Last Night

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 2.—(AP)—Tre American monoplane pilot carrying Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and two companions arrived safe at Hamilton harbor today, after being forced down in a calm sea last night. The plane arrived at exactly 9:50 a. m. today after completing the trip from New York to Mermuda in about 24 hours after it started on the journey.

The monoplane was equipped with pontoons, and was forced to decend on the sea about 60 miles from Bermuda because of darkness last night after being in the air about eight hours.

Byrd Pictures on Way to New York

With Weather Clear, Aviator Leaves Miami Early Today

MIAMI, April 2.—(AP)—Continuing his journey from Balboa canal zone to New York, Lee Schoenhair, today took off from the Pan-American airport here at 5:43 with pictures of the Byrd expedition. The weather was clear, there was no wind.

The pictures are consigned to the Associated Press, New York Times and Paramount news. These will be the first pictures to reach the United States after Byrd's expedition ended its exploration of the Anartic.

The aviator expects to reach New York about 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Co-Operation of Growers Is Asked for Gift Melons

Chamber of Commerce Makes Tentative Plans for 1930 Show

OFFERED TO LEGION

Chamber Membership Favor Continuing Festival

The fate of the 1930 Watermelon Festival appeared today to rest upon the possibility of the city obtaining contract agreements from the watermelon growers for the supply of melons annually given away at the one day show.

Last year these melons had to be bought at peak prices, in competition with outside buyers purchasing for profit; and the Watermelon Festival committees are seeking some kind of protection this year as to price. The $1,000 spent for gift melons on Festival day last year placed too great a burden on the city, the committees claim, and they want a definite program of co-operation from the growers this year.

Festival Favored

These facts were brought out at a luncheon of the executive board of Hope Chamber of Commerce today at Hotel Barlow. The executive board was informed that the Chamber membership, voting on the [illegible] festival, returned [illegible] ballots, two [illegible] every other year [illegible] downfall of the [illegible]

After a study of the [illegible] mands of the [illegible] Chamber board [illegible] ever, upon some [illegible] with the [illegible] nishing part of the supply of melons which the city has hitherto had to buy in the open market. Post Commander Barney Hamm, of the Legion, who was present, was uncertain what action the local post would take toward the Chamber's tender of the Festival, as the Legion handled it last year; but action is expected at the next regular meeting of the Legion.

Shippers Ask Action

Carter Johnson reported to the board that a serious problem is confronting local shippers in the shape of new demands from the railroads regarding melon cars. Heretofore the railroads have always used cattle cars to ship watermelons in. As the opening between the side-panels of the cattle cars leave the melons exposed to prying fingers, and some of the outside melons reach market in bad condition, it has been the custom of either the shippers or the railroads to place temporary panels in these openings to protect the melons.

Mr. Johnson told the Chamber board that the railroads are now endeavoring to make it compulsory on the shippers to place this additional equipment in watermelon cars, an added expense of from $6 to $10 per car. The watermelon shippers of Hope and other sections of the state are expecting to contest the railroads' move, it was nidicated.

Members of the executive board present at today's luncheon were: President Ralph Routon, Secretary Homer Pigg, the Rev. W. R. Anderson, Barney Hamm, Terrell Cornelius, C. C. Spragins, Carter Johnson, Alex. H. Washburn, Thurman Rhodes and Lawrence Boswell.

Mrs. Cora Staggs Wins Flour Guessing Contest

The guessing contest on the large sack of Helitrope flour that has been on display at the Hope Furniture company for the past few weeks closed Monday night. The unusually large bag was weighed this morning and was found to contain 422 pounds. The winner of the contest was Mrs. Cora Staggs, her guess being 421 pounds. There was a triple tie for second place, D. H. Crysup, Allison Shields and Elmer Anderson guessing 425, 418 and 418 respectively. Second place winners will receive a twelve pound sack of Helitrope flour.

Wanted---A Few Gamblers

IT IS the proud boast of many Southern folks that their sires were men of daring, gamblers who risked their all on the turn of a card, played for big stakes and, accepted their losses and winnings alike. Such Americans were the product of an age of individualism, days when states depended upon their own efforts rather than turn to a handful of politicians at Washington to solve problems with which they were beset.

With the close of the Civil war some of those daring souls returned to their devastated lands to start life anew. Others turned to the east, the north or the west to contribute their courage and their genius to the building of what today are our greatest cities. But among those who remained in the South there were still enough to establish textile mills, build factories, exploit the mineral resources and set upon foot the real industrial South.

But death and the alluring appeal of more fruitful fields of endeavor gradually thinned out that comparative handful of real leaders and as they passed there grew up a generation of conservatives, safety-first businessmen who preached the gospel that stability in business depended upon security against loss. Their philosophy was that only fools gamble, wise men play safe.

And there was just enough truth in their contentions to bring them popular approval. Out of such conservatism there arose the New South. While the more daring immigrants were following the 49's, running railroads across the continent, building the cities of Houston, San Antonio, our safety-first boys remained at home and demanded regular interest payments on mortgages.

All of these are facts well known to those even mildly familiar with the history of the South. They explain why the industrial development of the region never truly began until immigrants seeking their fortune, men and women of intelligence and real vision, came into the South.

Coming a bit closer to home, they explain why Arkansas' tremendous mineral wealth remained for more than 50 years virtually unexploited and even today is so tremendous that only astronomic figures can express it.

If even the state needed gamblers, true sons of those pioneers who took a chance, it is today. Many fortunes await men with capital who have the courage to risk money in an investment in our mineral resources. But none appear. They sit safely on the top of the world and yell for outsiders to exploit their resources asking as their share only the comparatively small amount to be derived from wages and perhaps a few loans.—Arkansas Democrat.

Hindenburg's Greatness

TWELVE years ago it would have been hard to find anyone in the United States who would say a good word for the German, Paul Von Hindenburg.

Today, however Germany's grand old man seems to be demonstrating his greatness in a way that makes us glad to forget our war-time hatreds.

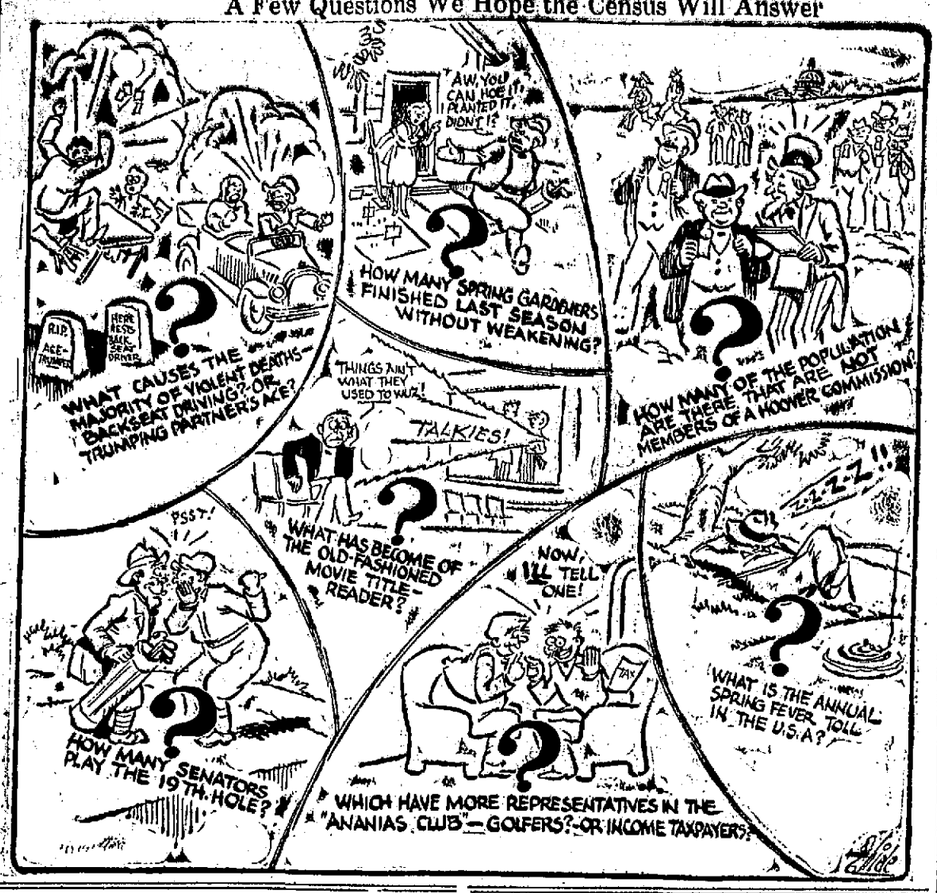

As president of Germany, Von Hindenburg recently signed the Young plan, against the advice of thousands of indignant Germans. Signing it, he made this remark.

"During my entire life I have served in the school of duty, and I have learned to do my duty for the fatherland without consideration for my person. Therefore any thought my person had was abandoned in this decision, and I gave up any idea of relieving myself of the responsibility by a plebiscite or resignation."

A "Wet" Testifies

BEFORE the committee of the House of Representatives in its recent investigation of conditions under Prohibition, G. M. P. Murchy asserted that he did not know any important business man or industrial leader who did not drink. He was immediately asked if Henry Ford drank, and replied that he did not know Mr. Ford. Fortunately there is ample evidence to prove that he was misrepresenting many of the business men of the country. A few years ago the Manufacturers' Record published letters from a large number of the most prominent business men of America in which they all stated that they did not drink, although some of them admitted that they had been drinkers before the adoption of the 18th Amendment; but after its adoption they felt under obligation to obey it as the supreme law of the land. This shows that Mr. Murphy either did not know these men or was lying about them. Much of the argument is as weak as that of Mr. Murphy.—The Arkansas Methodist.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—While Mr. Hoover was secretary of commerce he dotibtless had time to figure out how he could avoid the mistakes Mr. Coolidge was making. Now there are plenty of problems and difficulties annoying him which never seemed to bother Mr. Coolidge very much, although they include a pile of dirty dishes which the last administration left to be washed.

Thus far there is only one real outstanding cleanup job to the credit of Mr. Hoover, but it has been performed in a manner that defies criticism and recent developments have tended to accentuate a sincere determination to carry it to logical conclusions. One refers to the change in the method of dealing with Latin America and the much better feeling that has been engendered between the United States and the other republics of the hemisphere.

When Hoover was elected we were still pretty generally regarded as a great big imperialistic giant bent on gobbling up all the younger and smaller neighbors. After the president-elect came back from his amiable voyage to South America your correspondent pointed out that everything would be lovely if the spirit of the visit were introduced into our foreign policy. Otherwise the gesture would have been considerably worse than useless and disillusioned Latin-Americans would have disliked us more than ever." Hoover's foreign policy, however, has been consistently liberal and friendly toward Latin America; the recent work of his commission in Haiti and the State Department's semi-official reinterpretation of the Monroe Doctrine are excellent examples.

South and Central America never boiled over about the dictatorship of American marines in Haiti, but it was used by our critics as a fine example of the way we did business with weak little nations. The Haitians are black people and that fact kept the Latins from becoming as sore as they were when the State Department was in difficulties with Nicaragua and Mexico.

The new Haitian policy is a complete reversal. Instead of, as in the past, having a puppet president dominated by Brigadier General John H. Russell, the Haitians are going to elect their own Congress which will then proceed to elect a president of Haitian choice. Until Hoover's commission arrived it appeared that President Borno and Russell were about to pick their own man to succeed Borno and that American suppression of free elections, free press and other civil liberties would continue. A civilian American minister is expected to replace Russell and although the Haitians may make a mess of governing themselves, an existing treaty will maintain the marine occupation until 1936, by which time they will have had some practice at free and peaceful government.

Lady Took Cardui On Advice of Her Mother and Greatly Improved.

Mound City, Ill.—Mrs. Beatrice Stephens, of 421 North Main Street, this city, says she greatly improved in health after she had taken Cardui. Mrs. Stephens' report of her use of Cardui follows:

"I suffered constantly with a pain in my back. Many nights I could not sleep. I had nervous spells. I was weak and trembled, and would have to lie down.

"I had no appetite at all, and lost in weight.

"My mother had taken Cardui and found it so good that she told me to try it. After I had taken Cardui a little while I began to feel much better. I was so improved that I kept on taking it for some time. I gained in weight and looked like a different woman. I slept fine and no longer felt weak and down-hearted.

"I praise Cardui for what it did for me. I have told my friends about it and what it did for me. It is a splendid medicine."

Cardui may be just what you need. It is a reconstructive medicine of long established value.

Wife No Longer Cross or Nervous---Man Happy

"I no longer worry or am cross, and happy is happy. Before taking Vinol, I always was so tired and nervous."—Mrs. J. Balot.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. John S. Gibson Drug Co. (adv)

WORRY

The trifling cares that weigh us down.
Are never eased by sighing;
A smile is braver than a frown,
And far more satisfying.
Oh, what if skies are dull today?
The sun may shine tomorrow;
Let's put the petty hurts away.
And save our tears for sorrow.
Small good it does to fume and fret
And worry over trifles.
Too much of gloom, like ashes wet,
The fire of courage stifles.
Let's keep our brave hearts in repair,
Our faith the best of all things.
Staunch for the griefs that we must bear;
Not broken down by small things.

Garbo Superbs As "Anna Christie"

Greta Garbo makes her talking picture debut in "Anna Christie," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle which opens today at the Saenger theatre.

In this picture Garbo scores the triumph of her career, her voice recording splendidly, adding power to hr dramatic instinct and bringing fascination in multipl quantities to her personality.

As the heroine of Eugene O'Neill's play of regeneration, Garbo contributes a performance of great poignancy and effectiveness. Never before has she reached such heights of emotionalism.

Clarence Brown, who directed the picture from Frances Marion's adaptation of the play in which Pauline Lord originally starred, may be credited with having produced the most artistic and compelling talking picture yet to reach the screen. He has not allowed the mechanics of the microphone to stilt his action or hamper the pictorial scipe of the camera. The timing of the dialogue is capably done, every spoken work or sound exactly in its most effective place.

Charles Bickford, hero of "Dynamite," plays opposite Garbo. George Marion, who created the father role on the stnte, repeates this performance and Marie Dressler, as the old hag, gives the first dramatic role of her career an excellent characterization.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the Hope Star, Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern shortening.

Where Mark Twain breakfasted at 3 P. M.!

WHEN Mark Twain, the American humorist, lived in New York, he used to wander out of his house on Ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at mid-afternoon for his BREAKFAST. This he ate in a certain French hotel nearby which is even now a gathering place for epicures.

Its dining room, still becurtained in Nottingham lace, has looked out over the avenue for more than 80 years. Not long ago I, too, had breakfast there—but not at 3 in the afternoon! And, my dear good reader, if the immortal Mark Twain had ever eaten such pineapple fritters and bacon, I don't believe he would ever have waited so long for them. Those slivers of pineapple simply swooned in a delicate batter fried to a honey-brown crunchiness.

I've found the recipe for you. You can deep-fry them in the French fashion, in your own apartment for Sunday morning breakfast, if you like. Crisco is so fresh-tasting and non-smoking that no frying odors ever linger around to offend early afternoon guests. They can be used, too, as an accompaniment for other meat courses for other meals, or as a dessert by themselves.

Other fruit than pineapple can be substituted in the batter I'm giving you but I wouldn't risk substituting another fat. For Crisco is the only fat I know of that allows the real flavor of any food cooked with it, or in it, to assert its individuality. If you taste Crisco, yourself, just as it comes from the can, you can readily see how a fat so fresh flavored will preserve the delicacy of your most subtle foods. WINIFRED S. CARTER

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1¼ cups canned pineapple cut in slivers
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon melted Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg (beaten)
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add pineapple juice, lemon juice, well-beaten egg and Crisco. Mix well. Then stir in pineapple. Drop by tablespoonfuls into deep hot Crisco (360° to 375° F. or when inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds). Fry to golden brown (about 2 minutes). Drain on unglazed paper. Dust with powdered sugar to serve as dessert. Serve plain with meat.

SUNDAY SUPPER CREAMED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs
6 slices of toast

Save out 2 egg yolks. Slice remainder of eggs thin and add gently to this cream sauce (mix well 2 tablespoons Crisco with 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped onion. Then add gradually 2 cups hot milk and stir over a slow fire. Cook till thick. Then add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley). Arrange toast on hot platter. Pour creamed eggs over toast. Press 2 egg yolks through a sieve and sprinkle over top for a garnish.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co. ©1930, P. & G. Co.

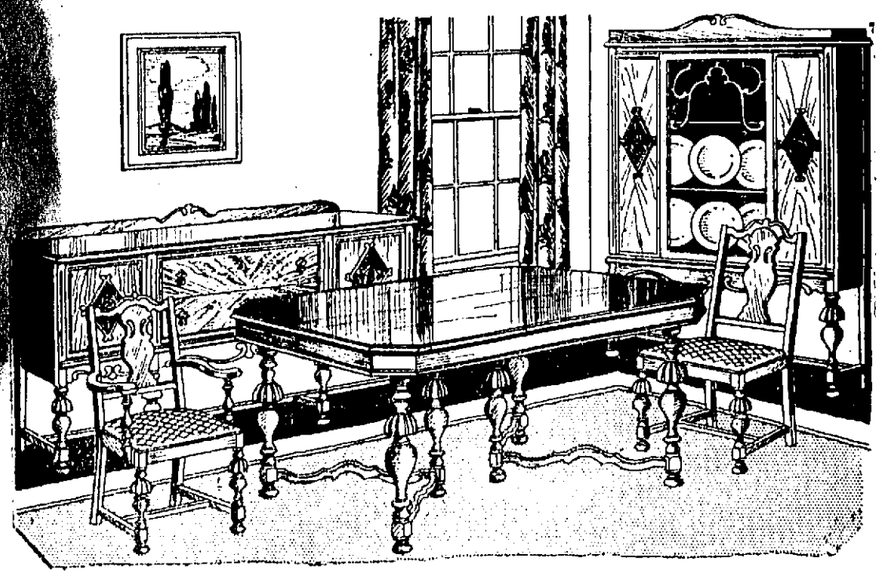

Taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor will tell you why things made with Crisco taste so much better.

In its new airtight can—as fresh and sweet as the day it was made

Program Wednesday

The program observed today by Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, instructor of the Second Annual Cooking School of Hope Star, which is being held every afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Saenger theatre, was as follows:

SPICE CAKE

2-3 cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
6 eggs yolks
3 cups Full Cream flour
5 teaspoons K C Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons pastry spice
1½ cups White's milk
1 cup sugar

Cream Crisco and add sugar little at time, while still whipping the Crisco. Beat the egg yolks and add to Crisco. Alternate flour, K C Baking Powder, salt and spices sifted three or four times with the flour into the Crisco little at a time with the milk. Whip the egg whites and add the cup of sugar and fold into the batter. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees for a semi-loaf cake or 375 degrees for layers.

ASPARAGUS SANDWICHES

Slice a Pullman loaf thinly, the long way of the loaf. Lay a stack of asparagus at one end of the bread, which has been spread with cheese and Menches' sandwich spread. Roll as you would a jelly roll. Wrap in oiled paper and chill in the refrigerator. Slice and serve with salad.

CAKE ICING

Bring to a boil ½ cup on pineapple juice and add ½ package of Pen-Jell. Boil again and add 2 cups of sugar. Boil three minutes. Pour over the beaten whites of two eggs. Beat until nearly cold and whip in a cup of powdered sugar. To about a third of it add drained crushed pineapple. Spread between layers. Color the others and ice the cake.

PEANUT BUTTER BREAD

3 cups Full Cream Flour.
3 teaspoons K C Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
6 tablespoons Crisco
16¼ oz. jar peanut butter
2 eggs
1½ cup White's milk.

Sift dry ingredients cut in the Crisco and peanut butter, whip the egg slightly, add to the milk and stir in. Color any two colors you desire. Bake in K C Baking Powder cans at 350 degree sabout 45 minutes, using a ThermEstate oven.

FOR HUB SANDWICHES

Cut peanut butter bread in half long way of loaf. pread one-half of each loaf with cheese filling or prune filling, press firmly, put and press firmly together. Chill. Cut down again, spreading on the filling and cover with the half of the other loaf again. This makes the two colors alternate, and when sliced looks like a wheel.

Whole wheat and white bread may be used.

HOT ROLLED SANDWICH

Slice home bread very thinly the long way of the loaf. Over the slice lay a thin sliced baked or prepared ham spread with a little prepared mustard. Drain the chili from 1 can Moreland's Chili. Crush the beans and meat and spread over the ham. Roll from the end, fastening with toothpick—about four. Drop into hot Crisco and fry a golden brown. When slightly cooled slice between the tooth picks and serve.

GOLDEN PARFAIT

1 cup sugar
½ cup strong coffee

Boil five minutes and pour over the beaten yolks of four eggs. Whip a bit and add 1 tablespoon gelatin that has been dissolved in tablespoon of cold coffee, while the egg and syrup are still hot.

Whip 2 cups of double cream flavored with 1 banana. Put through the mixer 2 tablespoons of candied ginger and ¼ cup marichina cherries cut fine. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla as soon as the first mixture is cool and whip them together and freeze.

BETTER STICK TO "STANDARD"

"STANDARD" IMPROVED GASOLINE

Technical terms mean little to the average motorist, but scientific experiments and scientific checks mean much in mileage and lowered cost of automobile operation. The reputation for uniform high quality, for greater mileage, quicker pick-up, and less carbon, has not been won by "Standard" Improved Gasoline through haphazard or old-style methods of production.

Such careful handling as that pictured above, in which a "Standard" Refinery employee is making a distillation test of gasoline in order to determine the starting and acceleration properties, as well as to minimize crank-case dilution, is applied to the manufacture of every gallon of "Standard" Improved Gasoline.

Murder Backstairs

©1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

FICTION by ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DORIS MATTHEWS, lady's maid, is murdered in a summer-house on the Berkeley estate, by blows from heavy perfume flask, given MRS. GEORGE BERKELEY by SEYMOUR CROSBY, engaged to CLORINDA BERKELEY, whose scarf binds the rock-weighted body when it is taken from the lake by DETECTIVE DUNDEE.

Evidence involves Mrs. Berkeley, Clorinda, DICK BERKELEY, Doris's fiance, EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur; GIGI BERKELEY, 15, who unaccountably sprinkled everyone Friday evening with perfume from murder flask, and JOHN MAXWELL, former suitor of Clorinda, admittedly in the summerhouse after the crime.

But an unfinished letter of Doris to her sister in London turns Seymour Crosby into chief suspect for a time, linking the maid's murder with the sudden death of PHYLLIS CROSBY 14 months before in London. Dundee cables Scotland Yard, then grills Crosby, who admits having seen Doris after 11 Friday night and having given her a pair of earrings of his dead wife's, but violently denies having bribed or killed the girl; also protests entire innocence of his wife's death, officially pronounced suicide.

When it is discovered that HARVEY JOHNSON, temporary valet hired for Crosby, has robbed Mrs. Berkeley and Crosby, CAPTAIN STRAWN considers the case solved, throws out police dragnet for Johnson, and leaves Dundee alone at the Berkeley home. John Maxwell comes and establishes alibi for himself and Clorinda, and announces their engagement. Dundee, still sure the murder is not solved, is asked for an interview by MISS LAMBERT, secretary to Mrs. Berkeley and close friend of Crosby and his dead wife.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

GIGI was the only one who attacked the delicious meal with any enthusiasm. Dundee wondered, with some embarrassment, if it was his presence which prevented the relief the whole party must have been feeling from expressing itself more exuberantly.

And he wondered, too, which face might betray its owner if he should say, suddenly: "Regardless of what Captain Strawn says, I don't think Doris Matthews' murder has been solved!"

Not that he had any intention of throwing such a bombshell, of course. His mind was a maelstrom of questions, unexplained and apparently unrelated facts and half-formed suspicions. But as yet he had no more idea who killed Doris Matthews—if Johnson did not do it—than had his parrot, the "Watson" he hoped was even now on its way from the Rhodes House.

"No, no, Wickett! Take it away! The very sight of food makes me ill!" Mrs. Berkeley protested, as the butler bent over her with a vegetable dish. "But do eat—all of you! . . . My beautiful, beautiful pearls! And my pigeon-blood ruby! If I could only get my hands on that vile man—And he seemed such a gentleman, too! I mean, for a valet—"

"Can't we talk of something else, Mabbie?" George Berkeley interrupted coldly. "Your jewels were insured. They can be replaced—"

"But Doris can't!" Mrs. Berkeley wailed, dabbing at her eyes. "Do you think you can get me another maid just as good, dear Mrs. Lambert?"

"I'm afraid not," Mrs. Lambert said coldly.

"Don't, Mother," Dick Berkeley pleaded, then, without excusing himself, he kicked back his chair and bolted from the dining room.

"When I think the poor darling died trying to defend my jewels from that wretched—" Mrs. Berkeley went on, her voice quivering.

"You wish you hadn't slapped her, don't you?" Gigi cut in cruelly.

"George, are you going to let that child talk to me like that?"

"Sorry, Abbie!" Gigi apologized curtly, her eyes blazing. "It's just that I can't bear—"

"That will do, Gigi!" Mr. Berkeley commanded sternly.

• • •

THROUGHOUT the meal Clorinda Berkeley and Seymour Crosby spoke not at all, except for murmured acknowledgements of Wickett's services. But Clorinda's silence was the stillness of deep happiness and peace—or so it seemed to Dundee. Her magnificent dark eyes were softly radiant and an unsuspected gentleness and sweetness hovered over the beautiful mouth that had been so arrogant.

Crosby was silent out of weariness and profound depression—a silence which not even his exquisite courtesy could goad him to break.

Mrs. Lambert dutifully sympathized with Mrs. Berkeley in her broken, semi-hysterical complaints against Johnson, the fact that the big party could not take place and the unfairness of life in general. But only her lips sympathized, consoled, reasoned. Her blue-gray eyes, looking abnormally large now because of the purplish shadows, were infinitely remote, infinitely weary. But twice, when Mrs. Berkeley mentioned Doris's name, Mrs. Lambert glanced upward at Wickett and each time their eyes held. And Dundee knew that, for the moment, butler and former mistress communed silently and sorrowfully as two friends who had loved a girl who was dead.

He watched cannily for any tiny clue that might betray her murderer, if indeed he—or she—was in that room. A word, a facial expression, the hypocritical overstressing of a note of grief.

But there was nothing, or if there was, he could not detect it. And he was glad when, the dessert served but not eaten, except by greedy Gigi, Mrs. Berkeley rose.

"I suppose," she sighed, "we must all try to get back to normal. Of course everything is at sixes and sevens, and I have so much to do I hardly know where to begin . . . Gigi, will you play tennis with dear Mr. Dundee, or take him over the Country Club for golf? . . . And Clorinda, darling, you must do your best to cheer up poor, dear Mr. Crosby. I know this has been a sad blow to him, since it means the postponement of the announcement party—"

"Mother, please!" Clorinda interrupted. "I have already told you that Mr. Crosby and I have released each other from the engagement."

"Nonsense! But I haven't time to argue with you now," Mrs. Berkeley retorted. "Shall we go up and plunge into our tasks now, dear Mrs. Lambert?"

"Dear Mrs. Lambert" glanced uncertainly at Dundee, and the detective answered for her:

"If you'll forgive me, Mrs. Berkeley, I'm going to borrow Mrs. Lambert for a few minutes."

"Oh!" Mrs. Berkeley looked startled, then indignant. "You mean you want to question her? I thought all that miserable third-degree business was over, since the police know who killed Doris."

"Won't you use the library, Mr. Dundee?" Mr. Berkeley suggested courteously. "I'm going to have a game of golf myself—if the police will permit me to leave the grounds."

• • •

DUNDEE flushed. He knew very well that Captain Strawn had no intention of keeping the Berkeley family or their guests under the slightest restraint, so he was lying, for purposes of his own, when he said:

"I believe Captain Strawn would like for all of us to be within instant reach. This is one reason I am presuming upon your hospitality."

"I see!" George Berkeley agreed curtly. "How long do you think our liberty will be curtailed?"

"Probably only a day or two," Dundee answered uncomfortably. "Johnson may be caught any minute, you know. If he confesses or if any direct evidence of his having committed the murder is found—"

"What if he proves it wasn't him?" Gigi demanded. "Captain Strawn says Doris was murdered between half-past 11 and 12 o'clock. What if Johnson could prove he left before then?"

"That is why I am not permitted to play golf this afternoon, Miss Sherlock Holmes!" her father answered for Dundee, a smile twitching at his stern mouth. "Use the library anyway, Dundee."

When Mrs. Lambert, slim and immaculate in the powder-blue sweater and pleated cream-colored flannel skirt which she had been wearing all morning, took her seat in one of the big leather armchairs in the library, Gigi snatched up an ottoman, planted it at the social secretary's feet and flopped down upon it.

"And I've been told that adolescents were abnormally sensitive," Dundee grinned down at her. "Do you ever wait for an invitation, Miss Georgina Berkeley?"

"Never—if I think I shan't get it," she retorted cheerfully, pillowing her head comfortably against Mrs. Lambert's knees.

"Let her stay," Mrs. Lambert begged, laying a tender hand on the bright brown curls. "Gigi loved Doris—too."

"You were very fond of Doris, Mrs. Lambert?" Dundee seized the opening.

"I loved her," Mrs. Lambert answer simply.

• • •

"HOW long had you known her?"

He was not making notes, for he wanted his "witness" to talk with the utmost freedom. Strawn had asked her two or three hurried questions after the discovery of Johnson's flight with the stolen valuables, but there had been no time then to go into past history.

"Since August, 1927, when I first met Phyllis Benham, who was Doris's mistress then," Mrs. Lambert answered. "The two girls were more like chums than mistress and lady's maid. I believe Doris had been with Phyllis about three years before Phyllis's marriage to Mr. Crosby. They were about the same age—22 then, I think. I was instantly attracted to Doris, partly because of her sweetness and beauty, but largely because of her loyalty and devotion to Phyllis. And that, Mr. Dundee, is why I asked to speak to you."

"Yes?" Dundee prompted, when she paused because her voice broke.

"Oh, don't you see?" she cried, almost passionately. "Doris was not 'just a maid,' just an ordinary servant, if there is such a thing! She was a lovely girl, a beloved girl, a loyal friend. These truths about Doris must be recognized by you—by the police—when you are trying to solve her murder."

"The police think her murder is solved," Dundee reminded her gently.

"I know, but—"

"But you don't think so, Mrs. Lambert?" Dundee took her up eagerly.

"I—don't know," she confessed in a troubled voice. "I suppose Johnson, the valet, is guilty. But I've been afraid all sorts of insinuations might be made against Doris by the papers. Your Captain Strawn himself asked me if I had 'misused' anything since Doris has been here and whether Phyllis Crosby had ever been robbed."

"That was because Doris seemed to recognize Johnson when they met at the servants' dinner-table last night," Dundee explained. "The police naturally look for a confederate on the inside, as a matter of routine."

"You say Doris seemed to recognize Johnson?" Mrs. Lambert repeated, brushing aside his last words in her intense surprise.

"So Peggy Harper says. Doris did not say anything to you about having seen Johnson before?"

"Oh, no! If she had, I should have thought, naturally, that Johnson had been employed in New York or London and that Doris had seen him at the home of one of Phyllis's hostesses."

"That probably accounts for it," Dundee agreed. "Did you see Johnson yourself, Mrs. Lambert?"

"Yes. It was I who engaged him," she answered readily. "His references were excellent and his appearance good. In fact, as Mrs. Berkeley remarked at lunch, the man seemed to be almostia gentleman, in the narrow social sense of the word."

"With a gentleman's appreciation of art," Dundee said dryly. "One of the things he stole from Mr. Crosby was an ivory miniature of Phyllis Crosby. Something he could not sell—"

"A—miniature—of Phyllis?" Mrs. Lambert repeated, in a whisper.

She leaned weakly against the back of her chair and the pupils of her eyes dilated to an enormous size.

Governor Extends Tax Paying Time

Unfavorable Conditions Is Cause of Governor's Proclamation

LITTLE ROCK, April 2.—Governor Parnell yesterday issued a proclamation, authorizing county collectors, judges and clerks to waive penalties provided by law for failure to pay taxes by April 10, provided such taxes are paid before the day fixed by law for sale of delinquent lands.

The effect is to extend the time for paying taxes to June 9 in all counties except Pulaski, where a special statue applies. The judge, collector and clerk of any county may fix any date they choose between April 10 and June 9 as the time for attaching penalties, since the governor's proclamation merely authorizes such officials to waive penalties until the latter date.

The proclamation called attention to representations of farmers, business men and other citizens throughout the state that unfavorable conditions will make it impossible for property owners to pay their taxes in time to avoid the statutory penalty.

Special Taxes Not Affected

The extension applies to county, municipal, state and school taxes taxes on all real and personal property, but does not apply to special taxes, such as paving, drainage and other improvement district levies.

In all counties except Pulaski, the collector is required to file a list of delinquent lands with the county clerk by the second Monday in May. In Pulaski county the time for filing such list is the fourth Monday in May.

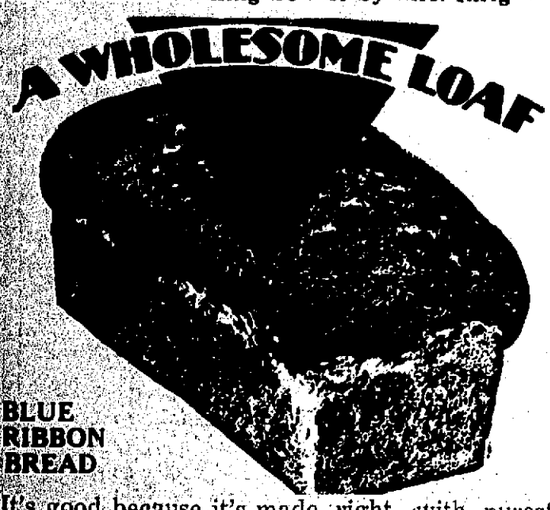

After the delinquent list is filed with the clerk, the latter must publish the list weekly for two weeks between the time he receives it and the second Monday in June. On this latter date, which will be June 9 this year, the clerk is required to offer delinquent lands for sale.

If taxes are not paid before time for advertising the property as delinquent, cost of advertising will be added to the proptrey owner's taxes. This cost ordinarily amounts to 60 or 75 cents for each piece of property.

If the property owner is to escape all penalties and costs he must pay his taxes on or before the second Monday is May, which will be May 12. If he desires to wait another month, or until June 9, and pay advertising costs, he may do so without being required to pay the statutory 10 per cent penalty.

The extension did not affect assessment of taxes, and the statutory penalty will be applied by all assessors after the period for assessing taxes expires, April 10.

B. & P. W. Club Have April Meet

Dr. Etta Champlin, Hostess, Presents Interesting Program

The Hope Business & Professional Women's Club held its regular meeting at the Hotel Barlow yesterday evening with Dr. Etta Champlin, hostes. Since the meeting fell on what is commonly known at 'All Fool's day, the dainty place cards on which were painted lovely violets, bore extra covers and the guests found it necessary to find their places a second time.

Table decorations were in violet and white, quantities of lilacs and bridal wreath being used, while favors were daintly corsages of violets.

The first course of the dinner was also in keeping with the spirit of the day, the soup tureens containing clear hot water! However, levity was soon replaced with reality and a delicious four course menu was served to the members and their guests.

Dr. Champlin, who is state and local health chairman, first presented a couple of plenth songs, with Miss Vollie Reed at the piano. These were followed with a "violet" contest, in which Mrs. Snow Stuart was the winner of the prize. Since this is also the season when not only young women's fancies are supposed to turn to love and poetry, contest in rhyme was staged, in which Miss Carolyn Clark was declared winner.

The club was fortunate in having as honor guests two of Hope's leading physicians, Dr. G. E. Cannon and Dr. F. B. Carrigan. Dr. Carrigan, who is city health officer, told of the advance that has been made in recent years in effectively controlling infectious and contagious diseases through prophylaxis, in which immunization and sanitation are outstanding factors. He told of Hope's successful efforts to ward off a recent smallpox epidemic which seemed imminent and also told of a "clean up week" which is soon to be launched in an effort to eradicate malaria-bearing mosquitoes, the anopheles.

"Malaria," said Dr. Carrigan, "is one of the hardest diseases we have to eradicate." Many people think an attack of malaria of little consequence but it is said to cost more in loss of work, cost of treatment and in impairment of physical well-being than any disease prevalent in the south today.

Dr. Champlin next introduced Dr. Cannon who gave an interesting lecture. He said, "We are told health is wealth; it is. But, if that be true then sickness is just the opposite of wealth. Very few people take into consideration the cost of being sick and just now, as never before, the fact is being called to the attention of our people. It is a waste to be sick and one of the greatest sink in the world today is the sin of needless waste."

Following this introduction Dr. Cannon stated that one of the greatest abuses in medical practice at this time is the abuse of the X-ray, which may or may not be a blessing to mankind. He said there are times when the use of the X-ray is strongly indicated; but there are times when its use is contraindicated and its employment by unscrupulous practitioners at such times savors of nothing quite so much as quackery.

He told of the benefits and dangers attendant upon use of the X-ray, or Roentgen ray, and its closely allied assitant, radium, and of the great advancement made possible by the perfection of the Coolidge vacuum tube, which not only provides almost perfect accuracy but greatly decreases the cost of X-radiance to the patient since practically every exposure results in a perfect picture.

He illustarted his remarks by the use of a half dozen pictures of outstanding cases, explaining the pathology of each.

Dr. Champlin announced the week of May 1st as National Health Week, with May 1st designated as National Child Health Day. It is planned that special sermons and lectures on health be preached in each church and before each civic organization in Hope during that time. Now, as never before, the idea of preventive medicine is being stressed and National Health Week is an outgrowth of this sentiment.

During a short business session presided over by Miss Elizabeth Harrison, the names of two new members were presented by the Membership Committee, reports from various committees were received and it was voted to send Miss Harrison to the State Convention at Fayetteville. It was asked that all who could possibly do so arrange to attend this convention and Mrs. W. G. McDonald, State Transportation chairman, reported that excellent rates for those going on trains would probably be afforded.

Guests for the evening, other than Drs. Cannon and Carrigan, were, Mrs. F. F. Stewart, who was with Miss Nell Bennett, Miss Laura Porter, who was Miss Maude Lipscomb's guest, and Miss Mary Sue Anderson who accompanied Miss Genie Chamberlain.

Mrs. Frank Hicks will be hostess for the next meeting, which will be held at the Barlow, Tuesday evening, April 5. This will be a pre-convention session and a full attendance is requested.
